The City of the Seven Hills

These hills offer splendid views of Lisbon. No matter in which neighbourhood you are it is for sure you’ll find a panoramic viewpoint (called “Miradouro” in Portuguese) near by.
The 25 de Abril Bridge

It is often compared to the Golden Gate Bridge in San Francisco, US, because they are both suspension bridges of similar color. It was built by the American Bridge Company which constructed the San Francisco – Oakland Bay.
The City of Pastéis de nata

It’s home to one of the world’s most top secret recipes: Pastéis da nata, loved by locals and tourists alike for their flaky crust and creamy, sweet egg filling, have put Lisbon on dessert-lovers’ maps. Even though they are made all over the country and found in nearly every pastry shop, only 3 people in the world know the original recipe: the same one that is sold in Belém at Pasteis de Belém.
The beautiful Belém Tower is one of the city’s must-see landmarks and architectural wonders. It was built during the Age of Discoveries as a military fortification, but many people don’t know that it was used as a political prison during the 19th century.
The city with the longest Bridge in Europe

The longest bridge in Europe is the Vasco da Gama bridge with 17,185 meters long, crossing Tagus (Tejo) river
FADO, is a music genre that can be traced to the 1820s in Lisbon. Today fado is commonly regarded as simply a form of song which can be about anything, but must follow a certain traditional structure. In popular belief, fado is a form of music characterized by mournful tunes and lyrics, often about the sea or the life of the poor, and infused with a sentiment of resignation, fatefulness and melancholia. This is loosely captured by the Portuguese word saudade, or "longing", symbolizing a feeling of loss (a permanent, irreparable loss and its consequent lifelong damage).

On 27 November 2011, fado was added to the UNESCO Intangible Cultural Heritage Lists.
